

Week 5 Progress Update

What has been done during the week?

- This week I continued polishing the app.
- I continued refining the main features, especially the photo feed and gave each post different images.
- I also fixed an error in the weather screen where the sunny icon was broken.

What are you going to do for the next week?

- Next week I plan to continue testing and polishing the app so the main features stay stable and work the way they should.
- I also want to keep improving the overall user experience.
- I will keep reviewing the app carefully and fixing any smaller issues that come up as I prepare for the next stage of the project.

Are there any issues?

- One issue I ran into was on the weather screen, where the sun logo for sunny weather was broken. I was able to get the screen working again, but that was one issue I had to address.
- I also had some freezing issues while running the app and had to close it several times and run it again. That issue is no longer happening, and the app is currently running normally.

Are you on schedule, ahead of schedule, or behind schedule? If behind, what is the plan to catch up?

- I am on schedule with the capstone.
- My focus now is on continued testing, polishing, and making sure the app is stable and ready as I move forward.