

Week 6 Progress Update

What has been done during the week?

- This week I focused on finalizing key parts of the project and making sure the app documentation matched the work I completed in Firebase.
- I completed my database design document and reviewed the app's data structure to make sure it accurately reflected the collections and features being used.
- I also spent time reviewing and polishing the app itself so the main screens and functions continue working smoothly.

What are you going to do for the next week?

- Next week I will start getting my final demo ready.
- I plan to go over the app flow, organize how I want to present each part of the project, and make sure I can clearly explain what has been developed.
- I will also continue doing final checks and small improvements where needed.

Are there any issues?

- At this point, I do not have any major issues.
- The app is in a stable place right now, so my focus is on presentation, testing, and final refinement.

Are you on schedule, ahead of schedule, or behind schedule?

- I am currently ahead of schedule.
- Since I am in a good place with development, I can use this time to focus on preparing the final demo and making sure everything is polished.
